Under North Carolina §168-4, service animals, which are trained to assist a disabled person, and service animals in training are granted full public access. Certification, ID, or equipment are not required, but you must either show that the animal has been or is being trained, or show a stateissued ID tag. Interfering with or harming a service animal can be a misdemeanor or felony.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Under North Carolina §168-4, service animals, which are trained to assist a disabled person, and service animals in training are granted full public access. Certification, ID, or equipment are not required, but you must either show that the animal has been or is being trained, or show a stateissued ID tag. Interfering with or harming a service animal can be a misdemeanor or felony.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Under North Carolina §168-4, service animals, which are trained to assist a disabled person, and service animals in training are granted full public access. Certification, ID, or equipment are not required, but you must either show that the animal has been or is being trained, or show a stateissued ID tag. Interfering with or harming a service animal can be a misdemeanor or felony.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Under North Carolina §168-4, service animals, which are trained to assist a disabled person, and service animals in training are granted full public access. Certification, ID, or equipment are not required, but you must either show that the animal has been or is being trained, or show a stateissued ID tag. Interfering with or harming a service animal can be a misdemeanor or felony.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Under North Carolina §168-4, service animals, which are trained to assist a disabled person, and service animals in training are granted full public access. Certification, ID, or equipment are not required, but you must either show that the animal has been or is being trained, or show a stateissued ID tag. Interfering with or harming a service animal can be a misdemeanor or felony.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Under North Carolina §168-4, service animals, which are trained to assist a disabled person, and service animals in training are granted full public access. Certification, ID, or equipment are not required, but you must either show that the animal has been or is being trained, or show a stateissued ID tag. Interfering with or harming a service animal can be a misdemeanor or felony.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Under North Carolina §168-4, service animals, which are trained to assist a disabled person, and service animals in training are granted full public access. Certification, ID, or equipment are not required, but you must either show that the animal has been or is being trained, or show a stateissued ID tag. Interfering with or harming a service animal can be a misdemeanor or felony.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Under North Carolina §168-4, service animals, which are trained to assist a disabled person, and service animals in training are granted full public access. Certification, ID, or equipment are not required, but you must either show that the animal has been or is being trained, or show a stateissued ID tag. Interfering with or harming a service animal can be a misdemeanor or felony.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Under North Carolina §168-4, service animals, which are trained to assist a disabled person, and service animals in training are granted full public access. Certification, ID, or equipment are not required, but you must either show that the animal has been or is being trained, or show a stateissued ID tag. Interfering with or harming a service animal can be a misdemeanor or felony.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Under North Carolina §168-4, service animals, which are trained to assist a disabled person, and service animals in training are granted full public access. Certification, ID, or equipment are not required, but you must either show that the animal has been or is being trained, or show a stateissued ID tag. Interfering with or harming a service animal can be a misdemeanor or felony.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners

855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Per U.S. federal law, a dog trained to assist with a person's disability can join them without a fee in public places like taxis, stores, hotels, restaurants, hospitals, and schools. No ID, equipment, or 'certification' is required. Only two questions are allowed: Is the dog a service animal required because of a disability? What work or task has it been trained to perform? It may only be denied if the animal is out of control or not housebroken.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Per U.S. federal law, a dog trained to assist with a person's disability can join them without a fee in public places like taxis, stores, hotels, restaurants, hospitals, and schools. No ID, equipment, or 'certification' is required. Only two questions are allowed: Is the dog a service animal required because of a disability? What work or task has it been trained to perform? It may only be denied if the animal is out of control or not housebroken.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Per U.S. federal law, a dog trained to assist with a person's disability can join them without a fee in public places like taxis, stores, hotels, restaurants, hospitals, and schools. No ID, equipment, or 'certification' is required. Only two questions are allowed: Is the dog a service animal required because of a disability? What work or task has it been trained to perform? It may only be denied if the animal is out of control or not housebroken.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Per U.S. federal law, a dog trained to assist with a person's disability can join them without a fee in public places like taxis, stores, hotels, restaurants, hospitals, and schools. No ID, equipment, or 'certification' is required. Only two questions are allowed: Is the dog a service animal required because of a disability? What work or task has it been trained to perform? It may only be denied if the animal is out of control or not housebroken.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Per U.S. federal law, a dog trained to assist with a person's disability can join them without a fee in public places like taxis, stores, hotels, restaurants, hospitals, and schools. No ID, equipment, or 'certification' is required. Only two questions are allowed: Is the dog a service animal required because of a disability? What work or task has it been trained to perform? It may only be denied if the animal is out of control or not housebroken.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Per U.S. federal law, a dog trained to assist with a person's disability can join them without a fee in public places like taxis, stores, hotels, restaurants, hospitals, and schools. No ID, equipment, or 'certification' is required. Only two questions are allowed: Is the dog a service animal required because of a disability? What work or task has it been trained to perform? It may only be denied if the animal is out of control or not housebroken.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Per U.S. federal law, a dog trained to assist with a person's disability can join them without a fee in public places like taxis, stores, hotels, restaurants, hospitals, and schools. No ID, equipment, or 'certification' is required. Only two questions are allowed: Is the dog a service animal required because of a disability? What work or task has it been trained to perform? It may only be denied if the animal is out of control or not housebroken.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Per U.S. federal law, a dog trained to assist with a person's disability can join them without a fee in public places like taxis, stores, hotels, restaurants, hospitals, and schools. No ID, equipment, or 'certification' is required. Only two questions are allowed: Is the dog a service animal required because of a disability? What work or task has it been trained to perform? It may only be denied if the animal is out of control or not housebroken.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Per U.S. federal law, a dog trained to assist with a person's disability can join them without a fee in public places like taxis, stores, hotels, restaurants, hospitals, and schools. No ID, equipment, or 'certification' is required. Only two questions are allowed: Is the dog a service animal required because of a disability? What work or task has it been trained to perform? It may only be denied if the animal is out of control or not housebroken.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info

Per U.S. federal law, a dog trained to assist with a person's disability can join them without a fee in public places like taxis, stores, hotels, restaurants, hospitals, and schools. No ID, equipment, or 'certification' is required. Only two questions are allowed: Is the dog a service animal required because of a disability? What work or task has it because of a disability? What work or task has it been trained to perform? It may only be denied if the animal is out of control or not housebroken.

Advocates for Service Animal Partners 855-272-7211 www.serviceanimals.info